ENTENTE ALLIES IMPROVE SITUATION GREATLY ON THE WESTERN FRONT DURING PAST YEAR.

Outstanding Points Of The Year's Developments Given In Resume Of Various Campaigns

BETTER THAN YEAR AGO

The military situation of entente allies on the western front at the end of the third year of the war, is regarded by competent authorities as actually better than it was a year ago and enormously better prospectively by reason of the intervention of the United States, the big change in the German situation, the evacuation of a part of France by the Germans. This retirement which was announced in Germany as a strategic retreat, is simply a retreat so that the German lines may be shortened and held by fewer divisions, wherever the lines moved to a better position. The allies measured their success not by the ground gained but by the fact that the Germans have had to endure shock after shock and in doing so have lost.

WARSANS-MAGEE DEAL MAY SAVE THEM BOTH

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

It may be that the deal which sent Lee Magee to the St. Louis Browns and brought Armando Marsans from the Browns to the Yankees will be the saving of two fine ball players.

When Magee was a member of the Cardinals he was conceded to be one of the finest ball players in the game. Likewise when Marsans was a member of the Cincinnati Reds he was acknowledged to be one of the real whizzes among outfielders.

Then both players took a leap to the Federal league, where Magee immediately began to hit and field like a fend, and at the same time being hooked to a job as manager of the Brooklyn club.

It was said for Magee that he was the only real rival Ty Cobb had, and when the Federal league went on the rocks New York rejoiced that he was to become a member of the Yankees. His failure there now is history.

Marsans' record reads something the same, although he found it impossible to hit Federal league pitching to another. His sojourn in the American league has been just as much of a famous flounder as Magee's engagement with the Yankees.

Often it happens that a change of clubs makes a ball player all over again. It has happened many times that men refused by one club has blossomed into regular beings when hit to another. The cases of Dick Ruthen, Milton Stock and many others make plenty of evidence to back up this assertion.

It will be logical if Magee fails to come back for he has all the motions of a splendid ball player.

THINK NEW PITCHER CAPABLE OF BEATING WHITEWATER SUNDAY

Captain Has a Harp Named Mitchell to Battle Whitewater's Three-League, Lanthrop, Tomorrow.

The Cardinals and Whitewater clash tomorrow to determine who's who in the third berth in the Central State percentage column. Both teams have reason to figure that it is either the Cardinals or the Whitewater. As it is now, all three are in third place, and it is certain that at least one of these teams will slip tomorrow.

Captain "Duckie" Eberts of the Cardinals crew says it isn't going to be his pitcher's turn to pitch. With a crack mountain, Mitchell and Crockett in the relief chair, together with the lanky and clever Feine, who will start at first, but who will be ready for box-work at any moment, it appears that the Cardinals' pitching staff is at its season's best. Much is expected from Mitchell and Eberts is certain that he put a couple of good nicks in the reputation of Lanthrop, Whitewater's league find.

It was in the middle of May that Whitewater appeared here last, but since that time the team has seen constant improvement. A present, the visitors have what appears to be, from its past two games, an evenly developed and smooth running aggregation. The Cardinals have also showed much improvement since also in May and with a general weeding out process the team now is the fastest of any time of the season.

The Rockford Maroons will journey to Port Arthur tomorrow. Since the Port has been slipping so badly lately, it appears that the Maroons will give the Rebels a stiff battle—perhaps beat them.

LITTLE CHANCE U. S. WILL CALL THEM OFF

The American League is ready to shorten its season and call off the world's series if the government deems it necessary for a war measure. Ban Johnson declared here in an interview that he would call the league off to claim exemption.

The moment the government says the word we will shorten our season, if necessary, and devote our energies to the great cause for which we are preparing to fight," said the American league president just before starting for Chicago.

Must Help Uncle Sam.
"Baseball not only the national game, but also a big business enterprise, yet it must not be allowed to stand in the way of Uncle Sam's tremendous efforts to raise an army which will win the war."

Players Well Drilled.
"If the government calls the new conscription army to the colors in September the American League will be prepared to wind up the championship race immediately and turn over ship race immediately to the army. It might be possible to play the world's series as usual, but if that event happened to interfere with the government's war plans it could easily be called off."

"The nation's welfare is more important to baseball men as well as to

MEDDLESOME DOCTOR CAUSE OF BRITISH MESOPOTAMIA PROBE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, July 28.—There's an English surgeon named Carter who is making trouble for himself. Some years ago he was professor of Materia Medica, Pharmacy and Morbid Anatomy, as well as Curator of the Museum at Grant Medical College, Bombay. Walking down the street one day, carrying all this title, he met a native doctor from a rare leg ailment, one that meant amputation at an early date, and danger to the native's life. He explained the ailment to the doctor, and offered him five rupees for the privilege of performing the amputation that afternoon. The native grabbed at the bargain and his life was saved.

But the next morning Carter was awakened by a congregation of half-maimed and blind natives outside his house, all clamoring for the opportunity to earn five rupees. Carter, Mesopotamia resulted in the appearance there of Major Robert M. Carter, Indian Medical Service. Very soon he was in trouble with the D. A. and Q. M. G. for insisting, long after his insistence had been frowned upon, that medical conditions must be made better.

I threatened to put him under arrest, said I would get his hospital ship taken away from him, for a meddlesome, interfering faddist. This is the language attributed to the D. A. and Q. M. G. in the report of the Royal Commission on the Mesopotamia mess.

The incident might have ended just this way, but for the fact that by the time he had got this official into his state of mind, the noise had reached Sir John Nixon, commander in chief, who caused an investigation to be made. It was that steps were then taken to remedy as far as possible the consequences of the terrible earlier neglect.

And out of the whole sad story of the first Mesopotamia campaign, as made public by the Royal Commission's findings, about the only paragraph of commendation is that given to the work of the meddlesome doctor.

SEEK AN AGREEMENT WITH THE RED CROSS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, July 28.—Although the differences between the Red Cross and the various independent organizations engaged in war relief work have not been adjusted today, an announcement was made by Judge Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the Red Cross committee on cooperation, that the Red Cross was expected to be reached with the American Fund for Wounded French, the fund of which Miss Anne Morgan is treasurer. Each of the organizations, which were organized in the Federal Council of Allied War Relief Charities, to treat individually with the Red Cross, some point at issue between the Red Cross and the independent organizations was said to be the question of allowing the Red Cross clearing house to act as distributing agent of all supplies. The independent organizations already have made separate agreements with the Red Cross, and unless the others do so, it is said, it will be necessary for them to transport their own supplies to Europe at a cost of about $50 a ton.

Speaking of the contention of the independent organizations that they could not allow the Red Cross to send supplies given for one hospital to another simply because of the efficiency system of Red Cross, Judge Lovett said they have trained experts on the ground and they were for the purpose of seeing that hospitals which were the greatest need were supplied first.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

On Sunday evening last I was surprised by having an old friend call on me; one who I grouped with all through the lighted up to the time of Adam Forepaugh's death. His name was Mike Bodkin and he was returning from a trip to the Northern Lakes of Wisconsin and was on his way home to Chicago. Mike stayed over until Monday evening and he rehearsed many instances that happened while we were together more than thirty years ago. In a way Mr. Bodkin was an assistant manager for many years with the Adam Forepaugh show and while his work was not strenuous, when anything came up out of the ordinary it was seldom that Mr. Bodkin was not called on for his advice in the matter and but few men for more than twenty years stood closer to Adam Forepaugh than Mike Bodkin. Mr. Bodkin is now manager of the Showmen's League of America with headquarters and club rooms on the corner of Dearborn and Monroe streets, and it is with him that I had with Mr. Bodkin that helps to make life worth living.

That the circus people are doing their bit for the Red Cross the following letter written from the Barnum show to a theatrical troupe gives the particulars as to what they are doing for the Red Cross.

The second benefit ball game of the Barnum & Bailey Red Cross campaign was a huge success. Second game of the series was full of sensational features, and played with big league pep. The receipts were $1,240.35, all being donated to the Red Cross Bridgeport, Conn., Fair-Field County.

The B. & B. L. O. O. M. No. 35 played Happy Jack's Giants. An enormous crowd was given down town before the game started. Those who took part in the parade were the big band, side-show band with Zip as the leader; both teams, Barnum & Bailey, and the Red Cross nurses. Hundreds of town folks followed the parade to the ball park. The game was called at 8:30 P. M. Daylight in the Dakotas up until 9 P. M.

The Moose team brought home the victory, also both teams gave a very good exhibition of our national pastime.

Mrs. Monty Hines' Committee of the Red Cross were Mrs. Eugene Silbon, Mrs. Ella Bradna, Mrs. Victoria Davenport, Mrs. Belle Moser, Mrs. Bae, Mrs. Rose Wallace, Mrs. Laura Decos, Mrs. Laura Valdo, Lady Alice, Bird Millman, Grace White, Elizabeth Hanneford, Clara Groh, Lupta Peters and Mrs. Silbon. The 4th was circus day for the boys who did not have liberty at the United States Naval Training Station at San Francisco. Paul, a 12-year-old boy, formerly of Slipp and Palle of the Cooper Bros. Show) was it. Paul suggested a circus and while somewhat handicapped by lack of numbers pulled it off. He was adding himself with clown, white Paul gave the boys a real "comedy bump act," then putting on lights gave them such a demonstration of tumbling and aerial work as never before been seen at the Naval School. Paul was ringmaster, equestrian director, actor and everything. His audience voted the show a complete success.

That the world loves the circus even though it be in a primitive way the following letter and program from India will give you something of an idea of the first circus given in that far away country by the natives:

A HINDU BALLYHOO
Somewhere in India they had a circus. It was a very good circus, the Barnum & Bailey of Hindustan, complete with more hair-raising, brilliant and side-splitting attractions than any other aggregation ever agglomerated, so enthralling that the peanut shells of the loud young man in the seat above fell out four long hours ago. Notwithstanding the fact that it was managed, directed and performed by Hindus, the performance was Western in character, exactly like the show which played on the back lots of your home town that night it rained so hard. That is to say, like it except one thing. The Great Indian Circus had no press agent. Great B. N. Narain secured a clown, an Indian rubber man and an acrobat, but he forgot to learn the showman's vocabulary. He had never heard of the stupendous aggregation of miraculously used it, for he is enough of a showman to instinctively seek the superlative. The following program of G. B. Narain's Circus was sent to one of our readers by a missionary in Dehra Dun, India, and the latter insists that Narain had no intention of making the program humorous. In fact, he treasures this effort as an example of his mastery of English.

800,000 CHILDREN IN FOOD CAMPAIGN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, July 28.—Eight hundred thousand boys and girls, Uncle Sam's juvenile food army, located in every state, today entered the food conservation campaign by joining forces with the food training camps to be held this fall in connection with the gliding fairs and expositions of the country. It is to these children that the government will delegate the task of demonstrating to the 20,000,000 persons who are expected to attend the food training camps, practical home methods of preserving perishable food.

The girls, in addition, will demonstrate methods of efficient home management, baking, cooking, the arrangement of preserved foods into balanced menus for the family, and garment making.

These boys and girls are now being chosen through a series of contests which are being held in the schools, at community fairs and picnics and other public gatherings throughout the country. The winners will be sent to the food training camps as the government representatives.

CONTRASTS LIFE OF SOLDIERS OF TODAY WITH THAT OF '61

E. O. Kimberley Points Out Striking Differences Between Conveniences and Comforts in Two Wars.

Comparison of the conditions under which our army of today will go to action, with those to which the men of '61 were subjected, is strikingly drawn in a letter to the Gazette from E. O. Kimberley of this city. Mr. Kimberley was a prominent figure in Civil war days, as he has been since, and as the leader of the Third Regiment Band, was one of the first to direct the triumphant strains of "Marching Through Georgia." The letter follows in full:

Editor Gazette:

As we watch the daily drills of the young soldier boys on our streets, and contemplate what may be in store for them as defenders of the flag and our common country, we would say that nothing is too good for them. They will soon leave the city camp as veterans of the great Civil war from 1861-65. I am thinking of the wonderful difference of then and now in regard to the care and comforts provided. Then many of them were hurried away to the front in freight cars, dirty cattle cars, and upon reaching our destination, and much of the time after, had no shelter. What we had for food was unwholesome and some of the time unfit to eat. The young soldiers of today, we are credibly informed, will have ample, wholesome and satisfactory food. No army has ever better fed than this new army will be. The comforts in our army of 1861 were very few, if any at all, and yet we knew the government was not to be trifled with.

The comforts for the boys of today, while in camp, will be the Y. M. C. A., who will erect good buildings, where at all times may be found daily papers, magazines, etc., and there will be the conveniences of writing material. Added to this will be the theatres, where the best of talent will be employed. There will be nothing like the king's away back in the sixties. Oh, no. A newspaper seldom found its way to our camp, and as for conveniences of writing letters, we were left to the bare ground or a rough board which we had to use. We were required to stamp our letters, if stamps in their wet condition could be used. Now, as we are informed, letters are to be placed in the mail and should be as to pay, we had $12 per month, with a deduction of approximately fifty percent. At the present time the pay will be much more and the soldier will be paid one hundred cents on the dollar here, or in any part of the world.

In our first regiments, more especially, a majority of the commissions were given to young men who were placed in command because of some particular influence. In the organizations of today it will be different, and care has been taken to promote success and harmony among the rank and file.

The few old soldiers remaining of the war of 1861 and '62 will say that their heart will rejoice with all the good care our young soldiers are assured, and with one voice will say, "God bless you and may I please the great God of us all to return you safely to your homes and your loved ones."

JOHN CRONIN MUST FACE ROBBERY TRIAL

Held After Examination Is Had in Municipal Court This Morning—Testimony Contradicts

Who lied? This is the question the police and Municipal Court are debating this afternoon after the examination of John Cronin on the charge of the theft after a strong arm job Monday night of five dollars in money and a five dollar watch from Henry Wages, a farmhand from near Lima. Judge H. L. Maxfield held Cronin to trial on Aug. 23. Walter Dulin's examination is set for Aug. 15.

After Otto Meyers, Eastern avenue, testified that on Monday night he saw Wages and Cronin the silver watch at the corner of Center and Western avenues. James Hession, Washington street, took the stand and swore that Wages in a North Academy street saloon at 10 o'clock the same evening and that Wages refused to buy a drink because he did not have the money and he volunteered the information that he had lost his watch. Where the deception lies there are divers opinions.

Other witnesses including John C. Karberg, South River street saloon, and eight Captain Thomas Morrissey were called to the stand. Cronin is at liberty under $150 surety put up by his brother.

BIG COMMUNITY MEETING HELD THURSDAY EVENING AT THE ROCK HILL SCHOOL

One of the most entertaining and instructive community meetings held in Rock County this season was that at the Rock Hill School Thursday evening, when a large number of people gathered for a program of addresses and music. L. A. Markham, county agricultural agent, spoke on the great value of silage and the advantages of constructing a silo on every farm. He also urged the farmers to destroy the white grub pests, by plowing early this fall, after the first of October, or even earlier the grubs begin to dig down and soon get below the plow line.

Professor Graege of Fort Atkinson, emphasized methods of increasing the dairy profits, and Professor Weil of Madison spoke of farming conditions in several localities. The address of welcome was delivered by Melvin Keatrud. Mrs. LeRoy Grenawalt rendered a delightful vocal solo, "Mother Macrae" and "Forgotten." During the evening a number of photographic selections were played, and C. M. Veile closed the evening with a few remarks. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher association of that district.

BIG SUM REALIZED BY NAVY LEAGUE AT BENEFIT LAST NIGHT

Over $150 Brought in at Unusual Entertainment Given Last Evening at the Country Club.

Though returns are not yet complete, officers of the Navy League estimate that the over one hundred and fifty dollars was realized from the big benefit given at the country club last evening for that society. More people thronged the club house and the proceeds than have been seen there for some years, and as every one was a spender, the many features of the entertainment drew in a constantly increasing stream of nickels and dimes.

In the entertainment given by Miss Jessie Harding of Chicago, whose presence was afforded an opportunity of hearing a most delightful elocutionist, Miss Harding has appeared in this city twice before, as well as in all the large cities of the middle west.

To incite local selection she gave Edward Everett Hale's "The Man Without a Country," in a manner that brought out the tremendous force and emotion of the piece. Mrs. J. L. Wilcox played the musical setting on the piano.

In response to the entreaties, Miss Harding gave a group of three monologues, in the French, Italian and English, which with a skill in mimicry that charmed her hearers.

A cafeteria supper was served at half past six o'clock, each guest choosing his supper from a large menu posted on the walls, and serving himself. All of the food had been donated by the members of the navy league, and the profit from these sales will be devoted entirely to the use of the league in carrying on its work.

At half past nine the ballroom was cleared, and with music from the orchestra, the guests danced until late in the evening. Special accommodations for conveying the guests from the street to the club and back were provided.

The money obtained from the benefit will be used in purchasing uniforms, and the small sum has been unusually active, attracted the attention of the authorities in Washington, and they were asked to take over the outfitting of the crew of the U. S. S. Albatross.

Under the active leadership of Mrs. A. J. Harris, secretary of the local branch, and Mrs. H. C. Darrin, an efficient corps of volunteers, the work connected with putting on the entertainment last evening, and the money raised, has been a most gratifying to all concerned in the event.

Baseball Sunday at Fair Grounds. Good game assured. Go and boost.

DEEM IT NECESSARY TO HOLD MRS. WATSON

Lima Center Slander Case Defendant Must Face Trial Judge Maxfield Rules After Examination.

Deeming testimony given in municipal court sufficient to hold Mrs. Watson to trial, Judge Maxfield ruled today on the character and physical condition of Miss Vera Douce, Judge Maxfield so ordered yesterday and set the date for August 15.

The scandal case took up the greater part of the day and the arguments of the contesting attorneys were not heard until late in the afternoon.

CHICAGO STRIKE OF SWITCHMEN TIES UP MUCH LOCAL FREIGHT

Many Cars Of Perishable Food Cannot Be Moved From Local Yards Because Of Tie-Up.

With the wage out of twenty-five hundred switchmen in the Chicago yards, Janesville begins to feel the real effect of a freight tie-up. An embargo was placed on all perishable goods and live stock bound for Chicago this morning. Officials of both the Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Northwestern roads report that this embargo will remain in effect during the continuance of the strike.

The C. & M. & St. P. officials report tied-up in the local yards, about ten or fifteen cars of which are perishables. Eight cars of these are among the cars that are in the neighborhood of forty-cars of freight are tied-up on their division, twenty-five of which are butter and eggs.

Men high in the railway circles state that if the present walk out continues for more than a day or two, the government will intervene, because of the enormous amount of food supplies that are now being transported to the various cantonments to feed the soldiers.

NARROW ESCAPE IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

Automobile Crashed Into the Rear End of Interurban Car.

When an automobile crashed headlong into a sifly moving interurban car near the South Side, Monday night, 11:30 last night, Charles McConnell, a member of Company M of this city, Fred Miller of Monroe and another man from Monroe were severely injured and narrowly escaped death.

According to McConnell's story the automobile had just crossed the cement bridge that spans a small creek near the street and could not get a full view of the track because of a clump of willow trees. Miller, owner of the car, who was driving, put on the brakes and was going at reasonably slow speed.

McConnell asserts that they listened carefully for the interurban whistle, but no signal whatever was heard. Although the sharp curve in the road and the presence of trees may have obstructed the sound of the interurban whistle, McConnell believes the motorist failed to give the customary whistle.

The automobile crashed into the rear end of the interurban and was given a glancing blow by the journal box and rear platform. The car was hurled into the air, and the front wheel, axle, body, headlights, fender, top, windshield, etc., are all twisted, broken or badly bent.

When the accident occurred McConnell was sitting on the back seat alone, while Miller and the other man were in front. The terrific impact knocked the car and out of all the men, McConnell got onto a returning street car unassisted he remembers nothing what happened after the accident. His wife, who was seated next to him, also received painful bruises and lacerations. Dr. Farnsworth, who is treating him, believes that no bones were broken but cannot determine the full extent of the injury until a few days have passed. The dangerously escaped serious injury, although both are suffering internal pains. They returned to Monroe early this morning.

The Present Day Movement Against the Lique Traffic.

In recent times there has been a tendency on the part of advanced nations to prevent the exploitation of the people by special interests. Piracy once authorized is now no more. Slavery formerly practiced by special interests has been substantially eliminated from the nations of the world. Public lotteries and authorized gambling have been driven from many American states and federal and state laws are directed against the exploitation of the people by the social evil. The liquor traffic, however, remains in many of the states as a conspicuous example of a special interest that is permitted to prey upon the vices and the weakness of humanity and to cause the ruin, debauchery and degradation of society for private gain.

The purpose of the present day movement against the liquor traffic is to promote the welfare of the people and the stability of our political institutions. Supporting it are the same forces that opposed piracy, slavery, public lotteries and gambling in former times, and opposed to the movement are not only those persons directly interested in the liquor traffic, but also many of the forces that stand for special privileges and special interests in the state and nation. It is the duty of our political intelligence, good judgment and character of the American people that the movement against the liquor traffic is making steady and sure advances and will mark the end of the license system in our country.

Let all loyal citizens have a share in this movement that will make Wisconsin a United States free from the curse and the domination of the liquor traffic.

Resume of the Week's Program of Moving Pictures

(By Mrs. Abbie Helms.)

A pleasing little story of every day life was seen on Saturday at the Beverly in "The Man Who Made Good." It showed how a timid plodder of a salesman was stirred up to take initiative by a progressive wife, until he became a power in the profession. There were several character studies of interest, especially that of a flashy traveling salesman. On Sunday and Monday the appealing little play, "Happiness," was seen with Emil Bennett taking the role of a lonely rich girl whom nobody loved. A faithful, pathetic little figure she was in school where everyone thought of her as a snob. Until she makes the acquaintance of a young man paying his way through school by taking in washing she has no friends. When she finds him at work, she turns to and helps him and is happy in the task. A charming little girl is a partner in the business and is of the same happy family. On Tuesday a realistic picture of a tough western town known as "Hell's Hinges," was shown. All the wickedness of the place, including the arm of a Japanese sword, were shown in detail. The parson was made drunk, the church was burned, and the town lived entirely up to its name. A display of bravado made by the hero in facing the mob alone and rescuing the parson's sister, was the only redeeming thing in the play. On Wednesday Kitty Gordon gave a very pretty and pleasing picture of a woman's life, "The Price of a Beloved Adventure," which gave opportunity for clever situations and exceptional ability on the part of the actress.

"The Neglected Wife," seen at the Apollo on Friday, is a serial story of the sensational type. This last week it had for a subject "The Writing on the Mirror." Ruth Roland is the star. On Wednesday a vivid impersonation of an unlettered Italian was given by George Beban in "A Roadside Impression." With his pet bear he is a wonderfully clever actor. He strolls presented, with Margaret Illington as star. The story concerns an American heiress who hastily marries a titled nobleman and moves to Paris. She is unconventional and is involved in intrigue, and compromised in name, until her husband releases her by committing suicide. The story is depressing. On Tuesday the splendid pictures taken by the British government on the battle front at the time of conflict at Ancre were shown. They give a vivid glimpse of army life around the campfire and in the trenches, with views of the famous tanks in action and at rest. The officer in charge, with his cat for a mascot, gave the human touch to these gigantic machines. The glimpses of the train yards, where the supplies are unloaded, and the effort needed to transport supplies to the front, give on a faint idea of what is being accomplished. On Wednesday a vivid impersonation of an unlettered Italian was given by George Beban in "A Roadside Impression." With his pet bear he is a wonderfully clever actor. He strolls

Appleton Butcher Cured of Rupture

Dr. N. A. Goddard, Milwaukee, Wis.

I was ruptured on my right side twelve years ago and have worn a truss ever since. I came to you for treatment in March, 1915, and have completed my course of treatment and am well. I do not wear a truss any longer and feel strong and well on my right side. I have not lost a moment's time while being treated and have suffered no severe pain or inconvenience. I am glad that I came to you for treatment and only wish I had done so sooner. I am well satisfied with the way you have treated me and you may refer to me at any time anyone who wishes to investigate your method of curing rupture without operation.

I came to see you at Appleton Sept. 25, 1914, suffering with a large varicose ulcer on my right leg which I had had for nearly a year and had gotten steadily worse. After I had taken three months' treatment my leg was all healed up and has not opened since. I am in good health and feel thankful that I came to you and got cured. I am satisfied in every way and am glad to testify to your ability and skill in treating these cases which no one else can cure in a similar way to me.

"Anything that may happen to be in sight."

"That means a pick and shovel or a wheelbarrow on a construction job. But there isn't much office work."

"The tramp looked up quickly."

"What makes you think I'm hunting for an office job?" he queried.

"Your hands," said the colonel shortly.

"The young man looked at his hands thoughtfully. They were dirty again from the tinkering with the motor, but the inspection went deeper than the grime."

"I'm not afraid of the pick and shovel, or the wheelbarrow, and on some accounts I guess they'd be good for me. But on the other hand, perhaps it is a pity to spoil a middling good office man to take an indifferent day-laborer—to say nothing of knocking some honest fellow out of the only job he knows how to do."

Colonel Baldwin swung in behind the steering wheel of the roadster and held a fresh match to the black cigar. "Though he was from Missouri, he had lived long enough in the high hills to know better than to judge any man altogether by outside appearances."

"Climb in," he said, indicating the vacant seat at his side. "I'm the president of the ditch company. Perhaps Williams may be able to use you; but your chances for office work would be ten to one in the town."

"I don't care to live in the town," said the man out of work, mounting to the proffered seat; and past that the big roadster leaped away up the road and the roar of the rejuvenated motor made further speech impossible.

CHAPTER IV.

Wanted—A Financier.

It was a full fortnight or more after this motor-tinkering incident on the hill road to the dam, when Williams, chief engineer of the ditch project, met President Baldwin in the Brewster offices of the ditch company and spent a busy hour with the colonel going over the contractors' estimates for the month in prospect. In an interval of the business talk, Baldwin remembered the good-looking young tramp who had wanted a job.

"Oh, yes, I knew there was something else that I wanted to ask you," he said. "How about the young fellow that I unloaded on you a couple of weeks ago? Did he make good?"

"Who—Smith?"

"Yes; if that's his name."

The engineer's left eyelid had a quizzical droop when he said dryly: "It's the name he goes by in camp; 'John Smith.' I haven't asked him his other name."

The ranchman-president watched the drooping eyelid of unbelief with a sober smile. "I thought he looked as if he might be out here for his health—like a good many other fellows who have no particular use for a doctor. How is he making it?"

The engineer, a hard-bitten man with the pronounced lower jaw characteristic of the tribe of those who accomplish things, thrust his hands into his pockets and walked to the window to look down into the Brewster street. When he turned to face Baldwin again, it was to say: "That young fellow is a wonder, colonel. I put him into the quarry at first, as you suggested, and in three days he had revolutionized things to the tune of a 20 per cent saving in production costs. Then I gave him a hack at the concrete-mixers, and he's making good again in the cost reduction. That seems to be his specialty."

The president nodded and was sufficiently interested to follow up what had been merely a casual inquiry.

"What are you calling him now?—a betterment engineer? You know your first guess was that he was somebody's bookkeeper out of a job."

Williams wagged his head.

"He's a three-cornered puzzle to me, yet. He isn't an engineer, but when you drag a bunch of cost money up the trail, he goes after it like a dog after a rabbit. I'm not anxious to lose him, but I really believe you could make better use of him here in the town office than I can on the job."

Baldwin was shaking his head doubtfully.

"I'm afraid he'd have to loosen up on his record a little before we could bring him in here. Evidently we're needing a money man, we can hardly afford to put a 'John Smith' into the saddle—at least not without knowing what his other name used to be."

"No; of course not. I guess, after

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Third Quarter. Lesson V. Isaiah LV. 1-11. July 29, 1917.

Golden Text: Seek ye Jehovah while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near.

GOD'S GRACIOUS INVITATION.

In the fifty-third chapter, that "golden pastoral," the prophet has described the Great Shepherd's method of recovering his wayward flock, even by the sacrifice of his Son. He dwells upon the particulars of the vicarious death of Jesus, and, in closing, exults over the triumph of him whose conquering was by love and suffering. In the fifty-fourth chapter, Isaiah describes the Church, her beauty, security, and capacity. In the fifty-fifth chapter he bursts out in a general and joyous invitation to the whole race to partake of the benefits of the atonement, and enjoy the security of the Church.

The prophet picks up the common street-cry of the water-vender, and turns it to the noblest use. He knows how inexpressible are the riches of grace, when, without hesitation, he invites "everyone" to partake. He has no inkling of a "select number," who only can accept his invitation. The "whosoever will" of the New Testament is the echo of this "Ho! everyone" of the Old. "Buying without money" is only a paradoxical way of emphasizing the freeness. Water, wine and milk is a progressive scale to indicate the refreshing, exhilarating and nourishing power of grace. But the sinner must be conscious of his need of salvation, and desire it, and come for it, as the thirsty man feels his thirst before he comes to the water-vender. And this consciousness of need comes with attention. The sinner must come, and bend forward to listen; he must hearken diligently. It is said of Peter after his denial of Jesus, "When he thought thereon, he wept." If he had had no thoughts, he would have had no tears. Meditation is the threshold of penitence. He who stops to think is near the kingdom.

Those who partake of the atonement are joined to God in the new covenant, which is never to be supplanted by any other, and which includes the mercies assured in David's greater Son who shall be the ideal witness, leader, and commander of the race. He will show alacrity in accepting it when it is preached to them.

And it is supremely important that the gracious invitation of the gospel should be accepted immediately; that we should "hearken," "incline the ear," "hear," "buy," "eat," and "seek"; or there is coming a time when the Lord can not be "found" and will not be "near." The present life only is the period in which the provisions of the atonement prevail. But in this life let the sinner forsake his wicked way and unrighteous thoughts; let him not only thus cease from evil, but let him do well in repentance toward God and faith in Christ, and God will not only have mercy but will abundantly pardon. God's abundant pardon stands in contrast to man's illiberal forgiveness. God's thoughts and ways in general, and especially in the matter of forgiveness are in marked contrast to man's; they are as wide as heaven and as deep as earth.

And the process of grace in renewing the soul shall not be a whit less certain than the process of nature. As rain and snow do not return until they have accomplished the end for which they were sent, so certainly shall the blood sprinkled from Calvary be effectual in the removing of sin from the penitent and believing.

And he seems to be in sympathy with the young convert. Mountains and hills break forth before him into singing, and all the trees of the field clap their hands. The transformation in his character and environment is as great as if the useful and beautiful fir had supplanted the poisonous and lacerating thorn, and the myrtle the brier.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

"The Poor Man's Market" is an old English minister's quaint description of the terms on which the wages of grace may be bought. Here the poorest man may compete successfully with the richest. It is a moneyless mart, paradoxical but true. One place where there is no legal tender.

The processes and fruits of nature form a universal language in which men of all races can talk with each other. As nature is the same everywhere, similes and parables from nature are easily understood by all.

The local and temporary is on the surface of the prophet's message. The near meaning is of course the deliverance and return from captivity. But the universal and perennial import is also easily discerned and is of transcendent importance. It is deliverance from the thralldom of sin.

The Hebrews had always been an agricultural people until the captivity. In Babylon they took on the trafficking character which has ever since distinguished them. In spite of restrictions, persecution and plunder they have always thrived commercially. A unique memorial of this is preserved in the Rothschild bank in the Ghetto of Frankfurt.

Against this mercenary tendency the prophet gives warning.

There is inspiration for the ministers of religion in the fact that vapor does not return to the sky until it has accomplished its purpose on the face of nature. In like manner God's message preached or printed cannot fail of the purpose for which it is published.

Here is one happy instance of the division of the sacred text into chapters. The fifty-third chapter delineates God's way for man's recovery. The fifty-fourth describes the church resultant from the divine effort; its beauty, security, capacity. The fifty-fifth is the invitation and exhortation to man to avail himself of God's grace in the Savior, and to press his way into the church where there is room and security for all.

The glory of the bible is that its Golden Age is in the future, not in the past. Like a cathedral it fronts East. It faces sunrise. It is a boatload. It is always saying hopefully and inspiringly, "the best is yet to be!"

EVANGELISTIC, EDUCATIONAL, MEDICAL AND INDUSTRIAL WORK IN FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The non-Christian world, take it as a whole, is a sorrowful world. Signs of grief and mourning abound on every hand. There is a dull apathy and hopelessness which is well described by the phrase "spirit of heaviness." Nothing for example can match the pitiable plight of the Oriental prisoner, in rayless mephitic dungeons. The medical and educational missionary entering such a field may well feel that he goes with the purple of the Good Samaritan.

If the prisons are not literally opened their horrors are in large measure mitigated. The millennial market is busier than ever in the exchange of beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning and garments of praise for the spirit of heaviness.

all, he's only a 'game duck,' like a good many of the rest of them. Day before yesterday, Burdell, the deputy sheriff, was out at the camp looking the gangs over for the fellow who broke into Lannigan's place last Saturday night. When he came into the office Smith was busy with an estimate, and Burdell went up and touched him on the shoulder, just to let him know that it was time to wake up. Suffering cats! It took three of us to keep him from breaking Burdell in two and throwing him out of the window!"

"That looks rather bad," was the president's comment. Col. Dexter Baldwin had been the first regularly elected sheriff of Timanyoni county in the early days and he knew the symptoms. "Was Burdell wearing his star where it could be seen?"

The engineer nodded.

"What explanation did Smith make?"

"Oh, he apologized like a gentleman, and said he was subject to little nervous attacks like that when anybody touched him unexpectedly. He took Burdell over to Pete Simm's shack saloon and bought him a drink. Perkins, the timekeeper, says he's going to get a megaphone so he can give due notice in advance when he wants to call Smith's attention."

The colonel pulled out a drawer in the desk, found his box of diplomatic cigars and passed it to the engineer, saying: "Light up a sure-enough good one, and tell me what you think Smith has been doing back yonder in the other country."

Williams took the cigar but he shied at the conundrum.

"Ask me something easy," he said. "I've stacked up a few guesses. He's from the middle West—as the Bible says, his 'speech betrayeth' him—and he's had a good job of some kind; the kind that required him to keep abreast of things. If there's anything in looks, you'd say he wasn't a thief or an embezzler, and yet it's pretty apparent that he's been used to handling money in chunks and making it work for its living. I've put it up that there's a woman in it. Perhaps the other fellow got in his way, or came up behind him and touched him unexpectedly, or something of that sort. Anyway, I'm not going to believe he's a crooked crook until I have to."

Colonel Baldwin helped himself to one of his own cigars, and the talk went back to business. In the irrigation project, Williams was a stockholder as well as chief of construction, and Baldwin had more than once found him a safe adviser. There was need for counsel. The Timanyoni Ditch company was in a rather hazardous condition financially, and the president and Williams rarely met without coming sooner or later to a threshing out of the situation.

The difficulties were those which are apt to confront a small and local enterprise when it is so unfortunate as to get in the way of larger undertakings. Colonel Baldwin, and a group of his neighbors on the north side of the river, were reformed cattlemen and horse breeders. Instead of drifting farther west in advance of the incoming tide of population following the coming of the railroad, they had availed themselves of their homestead rights and had taken up much of the grass land in the favorable valleys, irrigating it at first with water taken out of the river in private or neighborhood ditches.

Later on came the sheep-feeding period, and after that the utilization of larger crop-raising areas. The small ditches proving inadequate for the stock, Colonel Baldwin had formed a stock company among his neighbors in the grass lands and his friends in Brewster for the building of a substantial dam in the eastern hills. The project had seemed simple enough in the beginning. The stock was sold for cash and each stockholder would be a participating user of the water. Williams, who had been a United States reclamation man before he came to the Timanyoni, had made career estimates, and the stock subscription provided money enough to cover the cost of the dam and the main ditch.

After some little bargaining, the dam site and the overflow land for the reservoir lake had been secured, and the work was begun. Out of a clear sky, however, came trouble and harassment. Alien holders of mining claims in the reservoir area turned up and demanded damages. Some few home-steaders who had promised to sign quitclaims changed their minds and sued for relief, and after the work was well under way it appeared that there was a cloud on the title of the dam site itself. All of these clashing were carried into court, and the rancher promoters found themselves confronting invisible enemies and obstacle-raisers at every turn.

The legal fight, as they soon found out, cost much money in every phase of it; and now, when the dam was scarcely more than half completed, a practically empty treasury was staring them in the face. There was no disguising the fact that a crisis was approaching, a financial crisis which no one among the amateur promoters was big enough to cope with.

"We've got to go in deeper, colonel; there is nothing else to do," was the engineer's summing up of the matter at the close of the conference. "The snow is melting pretty rapidly on the range now, and when we get the June rise we'll stand to lose everything we have if we can't keep every wheel turning to get ready for the high water."

Baldwin was holding his cigar between his fingers and scowling at it as if it had mortally offended him.

"Assessments on the stock, you mean?" he said. "I'm afraid our crowd won't stand for that. A good part of it is ready to lie down in the harness right now."

"How about a bond issue?" asked the engineer.

"What do we, or any of us, know about bond issues? Why, we know barely enough about the business at the start to chip in together and buy us a charter and go to work on a plan a little bit bigger than the neighborhood ditch idea. You couldn't float bonds in Timanyoni Park, and we're none of us foxy enough to go East and float 'em."

"I guess that's right, too," admitted Williams. "Besides, with the stock gone off the way it has, it would take a mighty fine-haired financial sharp to sell bonds."

"What's that?" demanded the president. "Who's been selling any stock?"

"Buck Gardner, for one; and that man Bolling, up at the head of Little creek, for another. Maxwell, the railroad superintendent, told me about it, and he says that the price offered, and accepted, was thirty-nine."

"Dad burn a cuss with a yellow streak in him!" rasped the Missouri colonel. "We had a fair and square agreement among ourselves that if anybody got scared he was to give the rest of us a chance to buy him out. Who bought from these welsbers?"

"Maxwell didn't know that. He said it was done through Kinzie's bank. From what I've heard on the outside, I'm inclined to suspect that Crawford Stanton was the buyer."

YOUR GARAGE SHOULD COMBINE BEAUTY WITH ECONOMY

Pleasing design is a part of the value of any building. A well built Garage adds permanent value to your property.

— The most economical Garage is built of because WHITE PINE for all exposed surfaces "stands the racket" of time and exposure without requiring outlay for repairs.

WHITE PINE does not warp or twist or split or rot, even after years of exposure—it takes and holds paint perfectly—and because it is so light and soft, it costs little to work it.

Practical working plans, specifications and a complete bill of lumber for the Garage illustrated will be furnished free upon request, together with our estimate on the cost.

Our plans make building easy and inexpensive.

Our WHITE PINE makes it a pleasure.

"Home of Character"—No. 279

An otherwise plain and simple exterior is here made attractive by the use of wide siding painted white, with roof in black slate, proper spacing of windows, all glass bay and open porch in front. This bay and open porch make the living room an unusually light and attractive room. If the house faced the south it might be advisable to have a roof over the entire front porch.

Note the size of the living room and amount of wall space for furniture and pictures, also the coat closet opposite vestibule, and the size of dining room. The stairs are so arranged that rear stairs are unnecessary, which permits a large kitchen and four bedrooms on second floor. These bedrooms are all of good size and each is provided with a large closet. The bathroom has a tiled floor and "A" grade plumbing fixtures. The third floor has finished attic and maid's room.

The kitchen has our usual arrangement of double drain board sink, with cupboards above, and additional cupboard space is provided in refrigerator room.

The basement, which extends under entire house, has laundry trays, toilet, fruit room, vegetable bins and coal bin.

With living room and dining room finished in oak, kitchen and third floor in yellow pine, second floor in white enamel, hardwood floor, hot water heating plant and good plumbing fixtures this house can be built for $4500.00.

This design is 28x32 feet in size and so planned that materials work to the best advantage.

Fine Furniture

We have been gradually raising our standard of quality until we can now truthfully say that the best things from the furniture world may be found here. We believe that buying trashy furniture is the most expensive investment one can make, so we try to sell honest furniture—furniture that will wear and hold together, at the lowest prices that such things can be sold for. That's your kind, and you will see as much of it in no other store as we are showing.

Handsome Styles, Highest Qualities, Reasonable Costs

are the foundation on which this business is building. Suppose you look through our stock the next time you buy a chair, davenport or a houseful of furniture. It will not take long. We might save you considerable money and you will surely be welcome.
